

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

LRP's National Institute to Highlight More Than 40 Sessions in Six Tailored Learning Tracks
The 2024 program features sessions designed around the most relevant topics impacting special education, including the proposed Section 504 Regulations, child find and inclusion, and more.

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. – November 14, 2023 – LRP's National Institute on Legal Issues of Educating Individuals with Disabilities®, the leading source for compliance strategies, best practices and case updates impacting special education programs, announced today the full agenda for the 2024 event taking place May 5 - 8 at the Savannah Convention Center in Savannah, Ga.

The comprehensive program includes over 40 sessions presented by leading special education experts who will deliver top-notch compliance and implementation strategies across six topic-focused tracks: Administration, Behavior, Ethics, IDEA, Section 504 and Special Ed Connection<sup>SM</sup> Users Group. The agenda also includes three enlightening General Sessions:

- A Year in Review 2023 (and a Look Ahead): Attorney Jan Tomsy, with Fagen Friedman & Fulfroost, will present a fast-paced litigation review, sharing her expert insights on significant special education cases from 2023 as well as her predictions for litigation trends and regulatory changes to come.
- How I Met Your Mother ... Parental Rights and Roles in Special Education: Attorney Karen Haase, with KSB School Law, will draw from her 25 years of experience in special education to provide insights as to what effective parental participation and advocacy under the IDEA and Section 504 does, and doesn't, look like.
- Updates From OSEP ...: Director of the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Special Education Programs, Valerie Williams, who oversees administration of the IDEA, will get attendees up to date with OSEP's latest initiatives and areas of emphasis.

"The expert presenters from across the country give a true perspective of the challenges in special education," said Julie J. Kline, Esq., Vice President, LRP Media Group and Conference Chair. "Each session at LRP's National Institute aims to promote a deeper understanding of special education laws, share new compliance strategies, and reinforce existing ones that work for students and districts."
